

Brenly Rowland, interviewer. Brenly Rowland is an interviewer for the Turnaway, Abortion Restrictions and IUD Removal Options studies. Prior to joining ANSIRH she worked as a sex educator and sales associate at Good Vibrations. She has worked as an advocate, counselor and organizer, focusing especially on issues of reproductive justice and abortion access. Throughout college she was a lead organizer of the Abortion Speakout at the annual Civil Liberties and Public Policy conference. She has worked as a patient advocate at a clinic in her home state of Montana, and as an intern for Our Bodies, Ourselves in Massachusetts. In her free time, she volunteers as an abortion doula with the Bay Area Doula Project, providing support to people through their abortions. Ms. Rowland received her BA in Medical Anthropology and Women's Health from Hampshire College. Phone: 510-986-8990, X170.
