

Chelsea W. Simms, ANSIRH Program Coordinator.

Chelsea Simms is ANSIRH's Program Coordinator, supporting the successful operation of the entire office as well as providing assistance on multiple projects. She began her UCSF career in 2006 as a research assistant at the Bixby Center for Global Reproductive Health. She subsequently served as Program Assistant at the Center for Gender Equity for four years, where she coordinated professional development, wellness, and violence prevention programs for the UCSF community. Most recently, she served as Patient Navigator for the Obstetrics Services department within the Medical Center, where she provided tailored customer service to pregnant patients throughout their care with UCSF. Ms. Simms is a fierce advocate for the underserved, which is demonstrated through both her career choices and her volunteer work. She has volunteered as a patient escort for Choice Medical Group, health educator for The Women's Community Clinic, sexual assault crisis counselor and patient advocate for Bay Area Women Against Rape (BAWAR), and as a birth doula for the UCSF Medical Center.
